Introduction

What is Benchmarks?

Benchmarks is a statistically reliable, valid, and comprehensive 360-degree feedback instrument. In addition to providing feedback to help identify strengths and development needs, it does what its name suggests by providing the participant with a benchmark of how he or she is doing when compared to a meaningful norm group. Benchmarks is based on the Center for Creative Leadership's (CCL) studies of how successful executives develop, and why they derail.

How was Benchmarks Developed?

CCL developed Benchmarks from the results of research based on how successful managers learn, grow, and change, not from what they do or what qualities they should possess to do their jobs. Benchmarks differs from other instruments by focusing on what successful executives learned from the experiences that mattered the most in their careers.

“Key Events” Research

These seminal studies, first reported in 1988, examined how executives grow and develop over the course of their careers. The individuals who participated in the original studies described key experiences in their careers and identified the critical leadership lessons they learned from these experiences. These lessons are represented in the sixteen competencies assessed in Section 1 of Benchmarks. This research was replicated through the 1990s, based on larger, more global and more diverse sample groups, leading to revised survey content. Most recently a 2009 research project conducted by CCL examined the Benchmarks content across different languages and cultures. Items that lacked equivalent psychometric properties were either discarded or rewritten to eliminate cultural biases.

Executive Derailment Research

Beginning in the mid-1980s, these studies compared the careers of successful executives with executives whose careers had derailed in order to determine what specific behaviors cause executives to come off track. Further studies conducted in the late 1990s using larger and more diverse sample groups led to revised derailment factors. These five derailment factors provide the foundation for Section 2, Problems That Can Stall a Career.

Section 1: Leadership Competencies - Overview Charts

The next three charts provide you with an overview of your scores. Detailed information describing the charts is located at the bottom of each page.

At the beginning of each feedback report section is a Guide for Interpretation. Here you will find a series of questions to help you broadly think about the meaning of your results.

Guide for Interpretation

- Do you and your boss agree on which competencies are most important for success?
- What competencies were rated highest and lowest by others?
- Were there any differences between Self and All Raters scores? Pay particular attention to areas in which you rated yourself high and your observers rated you low.
- Where are the scores from the various rater groups similar and where do they diverge? What might be the reasons for this?

The left column of this chart lists the competencies. The center gray column shows the Importance ratings. You and your raters were asked to choose 8 competencies Most Important for Success in your organization. The right column of the chart provides the average scores from All Raters and Self for each of the competencies. All Raters includes Boss, but not Self.

You and your raters used the following response scale to indicate the extent to which you display specific behaviors:

- 1 = To a very little extent
- 2 = To a little extent
- 3 = To some extent

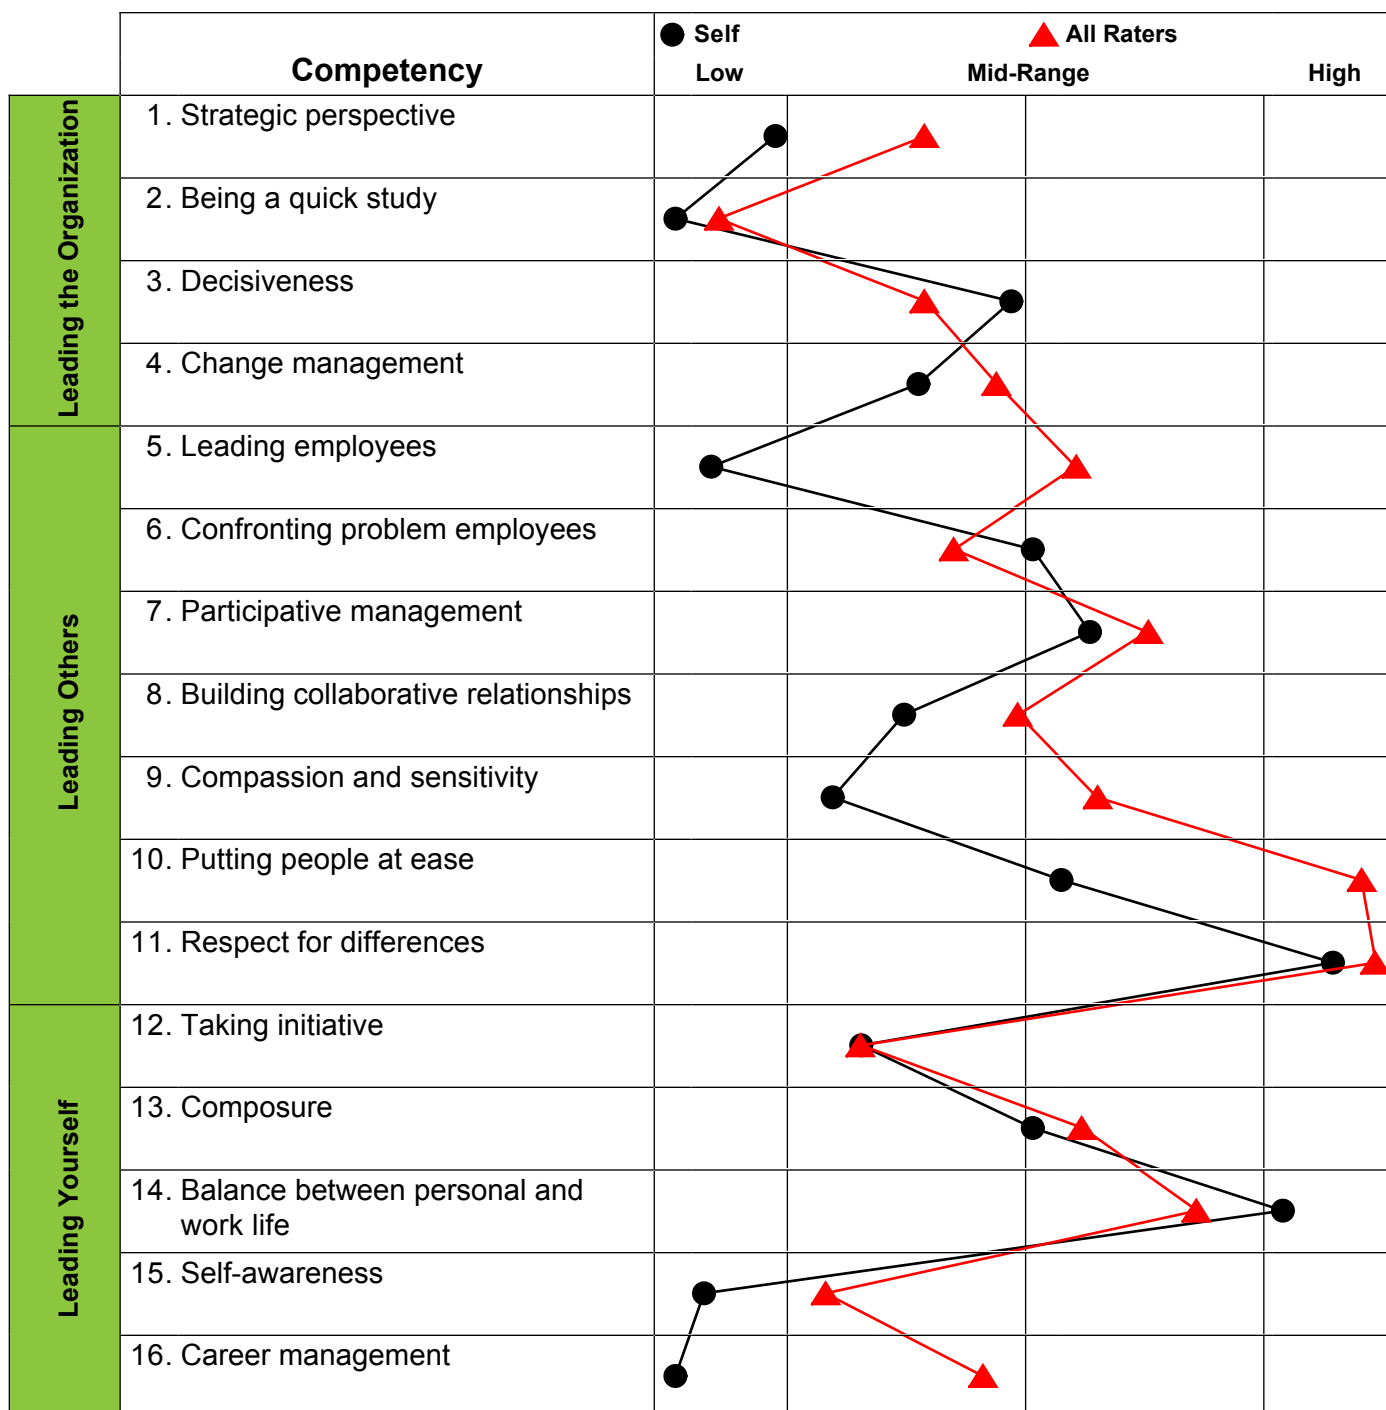

- 4 = To a great extent
- 5 = To a very great extent
- DK = Don't Know/Not Applicable

Norm Group Comparisons: Self and All Raters

This chart displays your Self and All Rater scores relative to the scores of other people who have used Benchmarks. On this chart you can see if your scores are low, mid-range, or high compared to the normative database CCL maintains for Benchmarks.

Section 1: Leadership Competencies - Overview Charts

Norm Group Comparisons: By Rater Group

This chart provides more detailed information by breaking the All Rater scores into the component rater groups: Boss, Superiors, Peers and Direct Reports. Self scores are also plotted on this chart.

Section 1: Leadership Competencies - Comprehensive Data

The comprehensive data section shows each of the competencies in more detail and includes:

Competency Name and Description

The name and description appear at the top of the page.

Competency Summary with Breakout by Rater Group

The Importance column shows how many respondents chose the competency as one of the eight Most Important for Success in your organization.

The Scores column shows your actual, or raw, competency score. You and your raters used the following response scale to indicate the extent to which you display specific behaviors:

- 1 = To a very little extent
- 2 = To a little extent
- 3 = To some extent
- 4 = To a great extent
- 5 = To a very great extent
- DK = Don't Know/Not Applicable

Your norm group comparisons by rater group are reprinted in this chart. Your scores by rater group are plotted relative to scores of individuals in your norm or reference group.

In order to receive a competency-level score in any rater group:

- Each rater must complete at least 50% of the items in the competency, and
- A minimum number of raters in the group must submit a survey:

Boss - at least 1	Direct Reports - at least 2
Superior - at least 1	Others - at least 1
Peers - at least 2	All Raters - at least 4

Item-level Feedback

This part of your feedback report shows the greatest level of detail and indicates how your raters responded to the individual items (questions) in the survey. The questions were listed in random order in the survey and are organized by competency in this report.

In order to receive an item-level score, the following number of raters must respond:

- Boss - at least 1
- Superior - at least 1
- Peers - at least 3, to ensure anonymity
- Direct Reports - at least 3, to ensure anonymity
- Others - at least 1
- All Raters - at least 4, to ensure anonymity

Peers and Direct Reports are protected rater groups. If your report contains feedback from exactly two Peers and two Direct Reports, a combined score will be reported and labeled "Peers/Direct Reports".

Highest and Lowest Rated Items

The 5 highest rated items (including tied scores) for each rater group are bracketed and shaded in green. The 5 lowest rated items (including tied scores) are underlined and shaded in red.

Section 1: Leadership Competencies - Comprehensive Data

Rater Disagreement

An asterisk (*) by an item indicates a gap of three points or more in your ratings from at least two individuals in that rater group on that item.

Guide for Interpretation

- How do your responses compare to those of your raters?
- How do the scores from the various rater groups compare to each other?
- Are there areas where you consistently rate yourself lower or higher than others rate you?
- How do your scores compare to those of the norm group?

Section 3: Written Comments

Responses to the open-ended questions are listed here exactly as they were typed by each respondent.

What are this person's most significant strengths? Please explain.

Self

- Industry knowledge, depth of experience in our business. Strong relationships within the company and with our customers.

Boss

- Pat has good interpersonal skills, she seems to get along well with most people.

Superior

- No comments were provided

Peers / Direct Reports

- Since she came up through the ranks, Pat has great technical knowledge and can talk with anyone at the company at their level. She is easy going but serious too. Pat is open to feedback and doesn't get all defensive like some people around here.
Listening.
- Credibility. I know Pat has my best interest in mind, not just her own.
- She is the best boss I have had--here or anywhere else. Good communicator, positive attitude.
- I would say that Pat's greatest strengths are her interpersonal skills. She is always willing to take the time to listen and ask questions if she doesn't understand.
- She is a really nice person and even tempered. Steady as a rock, even when things get insane like they have been since the merger. Thank goodness she is here. I think Pat has the potential to be a top leader at the company. High credibility, smart, easy to work with. She just needs to decide if this is what she wants.
- Pat is a good person. She is trusted by all of us and can be depended on to make the right decision for the best of everyone involved. She knows everyone and everyone knows her.

Section 3: Written Comments

What are this person's most significant areas for development? Please explain.

Self

- Learn about all of our product lines, especially since the merger. Focus more on strategic and less on tactical day to day.

Boss

- Doesn't challenge direct reports enough. Sometimes is too nice. Needs to address performance issues in her group more directly.

Superior

- No comments were provided

Peers / Direct Reports

- I can't think of anything I would call a big development need. Maybe spend more time checking in with us...
Doesn't get along with her VP. She needs to figure this out because I believe it is a problem for our group.
- No complaints. She is the best co-worker I have had in this organization. Can't really think of anything to put here.
- Pat has at least two people in her group who are not pulling their weight. As far as I can tell, nothing is being done about it. Some of us are working very hard and others are not. Something needs to be done.
Balance your good sense of humor with a better awareness of time/place. But keep your sense of humor.
- Learn more about what's going on across the whole company. Keep us more informed of what's going on at your level. Sometimes we have to hear things in the halls.
Work on getting along with our VP. Not the easiest thing in the world to do but she has to figure out a way...
- It seems to take Pat a long time to make decisions about certain things. For example. I thought we would never get approval for the N-105-B. It just took forever and it didn't have to. Poor work relationship with John.
